Category:Autodesk Category:Programming softwareRomance Let's face it, lots of people have little romantics in their lives. For me it's something I never had a good handle on as a child. My parents weren't really dating, they were co-workers or friends. I only knew of the occasional proposal or wedding. I was never given an example that was how a relationship should be carried out, so I always felt on the outside looking in. I never found someone to be interested in me or to have a great match with. I always tried to be the best I could, but I never seemed to get it right, at least that's how I felt as a kid. That began to change when I met my husband. I always loved to go to Disney World, and I was hoping to go during my honeymoon. Unfortunately, my husband had just lost his job, and we were scrambling to find a way to get to Disney World. We had never been on a cruise before, so we started looking for a cruise that was going to get us into Disney. The only cruise we could find was on Celebrity Cruises. The prices weren't cheap, but they offered great deals. We started getting the details and made reservations. My husband was ecstatic, he was going to be able to get us into Disney World. It was pretty well torn up, but the captain went with what he thought were the safest options. He sent the ship to Cuba to have most of the cargo unloaded, and then back to the mainland. My husband was happy, he was going to be able to spend a wonderful week at Disney World with me. The ship had never been there before, so he was excited about going
