Model C1D0N496 X12 EDI Viewer is a lightweight Windows application whose purpose is to help you check out and print the contents of standard ANSI X12 270, 271, 837, 277, 276, 835, 864, and 997 files. The tool can be used for viewing electronic claims data.

Supported transaction sets The program supports 837 Health Care Claims, 837I Institutional Claims, 837P Professional Claims, 837D Dental Claims, 277 Claim Status, 835 Remittance Advice, 997 Functional Acknowledgement, 864 Informational Report, 270 Health Care Eligibility Benefit Inquiry, and 271 Health Care Eligibility Benefit Response. User interface Model C1D0N496 X12 EDI Viewer provides a clean interface that allows you to upload files in the working environment using the built-in browse button (you cannot rely on the drag-and-drop support). On the downside, you cannot access a help manual that could offer you detailed information about the application's capabilities. Viewing and printing options Model C1D0N496 X12 EDI Viewer gives you the possibility to view and print listings of claims and remittance, data sheet of individual claims and remittance, functional acknowledges, and X12 Data in segmented lines. In addition, you are given the freedom to load 997 transactions on top of 837 claims transactions for line level identification of error information. The utility is able to analyze a user-defined file and gather information about the number of batches, claims, remittances, and service line count. Plus, it shows a total of the claims, remittances and service line. Model C1D0N496 X12 Viewer eats up a moderate amount of system resources when processing files, so the overall performance of the computer is not hampered. Final words To sum things up, Model C1D0N496 X12 Viewer provides a straightforward approach for helping you examine electronic claims data.---
