Like, for example, if i press button this textbox should be shown and it should not get focus. A: EDIT: I misunderstood the question. Set the Default button of the Textbox to something other than the first (default) button. You can do this by setting the ContextMenuStrip to a non-empty context menu and setting the SourceObject as appropriate:

textBox.ContextMenuStrip = new ContextMenuStrip();
textBox.ContextMenuStrip.SourceObject = textBox;

How you populate the context menu depends on the circumstances. This would be the simplest in your case. EDIT: In response to your comment, you can prevent the focus from changing simply by handling the TextBox.LostFocus event and setting

e.Cancel = true; If you need to focus the TextBox on some other event, I don't know of a way to prevent it. SEOUL, South Korea — U.S. and South Korean officials warned on Friday that North Korea had resumed the production of plutonium at its main nuclear weapons complex, an ominous step that could indicate a step-up in its efforts to build an intercontinental ballistic missile that could strike the United States. The State Department said that an intelligence assessment had “high confidence” that North Korea had resumed production of plutonium at its main nuclear complex at Yongbyon. It said that all of the material it had seen during a tour of the site in April was consistent with North Korea’s production of highly enriched uranium and plutonium in the past. It was not clear how much material was produced or when it might have been produced. The agency did not say where the plutonium was produced or how it was made. The move is a potentially significant development, especially if the material being made at Yongbyon is reprocessed plutonium, since it is the most useful form for making a nuclear weapon. North Korea has not publicly acknowledged the reprocessing effort, and some experts have doubted whether it will ever turn over the plutonium for such reprocessing.Q: How to solve error while checking for duplicate record in mysql? when i'm checking for duplicate record in mysql it gives error like ERROR: #1238 - This version of MySQL doesn't yet support 'LIMIT & IN/ALL/ANY/SOME subquery' A: It may be some or many years older but try change LIMIT into TOP in the query. SELECT * FROM table WHERE 1 ORDER BY id LIMIT 0, 10; This query will return the 10 latest records ordered by id, you will not encounter this error anymore A: LIMIT is a MySQL extension for retrieving only N items from a set, and can be used only for SELECT statements.
